Webb Declares Vehicle Act Is Explicit About Arrests Made

By LAWRENCE MONFORT
(Capitol News Bureau Service)

SACRAMENTO, October 3—The state's new motor vehicle law prescribing uniforms and vehicles of a distinctive color for traffic officers means what it says, Attorney General U. S. Webb declared today in an opinion upsetting the established order of highway patrol.

San Mateo county's deputy sheriffs and police of Redwood City, alike, are powerless to make arrests for speeding unless in uniform, so far as validity of court convictions are concerned, Webb held, in a ruling to District Attorney Fred L. Thomas of Santa Clara county, which in effect places enforcement of speed laws in the hands of uniformed California traffic patrolmen.

No officer, unless dressed in a distinctive uniform, and driving a car painted a distinctive color selected by the Division of Motor Vehicles may make arrests for speeding and so testify in court, according to the state's legal chief's interpretation of the 1929 amendements to the motor vehicle laws.

"It is my opinion," said Webb "that Section 155 of the Motor Vehicle act as amended in 1929 is unambiguous and that a policeman or a deputy sheriff making an arrest for driving a motor vehicle at an excessive rate of speed must be clothed in a 'full, distinctive uniform' and that if an auto is used in making the arrest, such auto must be painted such distinctive color as the division of motor vehicles has determined and that in a trial following an arrest for driving an auto at an excessive rate of speed by an officer or deputy sheriff not dressed in a full distinctive uniform or by an officer or deputy sheriff from an auto not painted the distinctive color determined by the division of motor vehicles such officer or deputy sheriff is incompetent as a witness."

The section at issue was written into the motor vehicle act upon insistence of the senate, when Senator A. H. Breed of Oakland, its author, was hammered until amendments intended to prevent use of speed traps were accepted.

Under Webb's literal interpretation ,neither police nor sheriff's deputies may arrest speeders unless wearing a uniform distinguishing them as officers, and if a car is used, unless it is painted white, the color adopted by the division.

The Redwood City fire department is busy with plans for its annual dance, which will take place this year on October 19. Arrangements have been made to have Fred Lamb's eight-piece orchestra furnish music for the dance this year, which will, as usual, be held in the Foresters hall.

The dance this year is being arranged by a committee consisting of E. I. McAuliffe, chairman; M. E. Ryan, C. E. Choate, A. W. Russell, F. E. George, Harry Borquin, Emmett Donnelly and George Solari.

A committee of fire men will, next week, make a house to house canvass of the town to promote the sale of their tickets.

San Bruno Man Found Dead By Side of Road

The cause of death of Paul Slickton, 35, of San Bruno, remains still somewhat of a mystery. The body of Slickton was found beside the highway near Portuguese Hill in the northern part of the county late Monday night by passing motorists. The body was taken to the South San Francisco hospital, but was pronounced dead when taken to that institution, and was removed to the Neri undertaking parlors at South San Francisco.

It was found upon examination that the man had died from a fracture of the skull, and it was believed that he had been hit by a nit-runner and left to die beside the road. Further examination, however, lead to the belief that the man had been killed by being struck upon the head by some heavy object, and had then been taken to where he was found and thrown out of the car.

It is now believed, though, that the former hypothesis was the correct one. However, the case is not entirely cleared up, and all evidence in the matter is being thoroughly studied. It was found that Slickton had been drinking heavily on Monday, and it is believed that he may have staggered into the path of an approaching car.

Two Boys Jailed In Santa Clara; Wanted Here

Two wild careers were brought to a speedy close Wednesday with the arrest in Santa Clara of two boys, after the car driven by one of them had crashed into a telephone pole. The boys gave their names as Donald Powers, 12, and Jack Ryan, 15, both of San Francisco.

The arrest of the two boys solved three mysteries in this county, the burglary of a San Bruno store and the theft of an auto in San Bruno and another in San Mateo. One of the boys admitted that they had broken the window of the San Bruno grocery and stolen several cakes. They then took a car which was standing nearby and drove as far as San Mateo.

At San Mateo, they stated, the car blew out a tire and they traded cars, taking one which was parked in the latter city. In the second car they went as far as Santa Clara, where misfortune again dogged their wheel tracks. After the encounter with the pole, the boys emerged from the wreckage unhurt but under arrest. They will be certified to the juvenile court here.

A Formula For Success

THE man of culture is the man who reads. He is just as particular about what he reads as what he eats. He who reads the most has the widest horizon. It is impossible to learn very much in one short life time without reading, but the reading man can enter into the minds and lives of many people, vicariously experiencing their dangers and romances, learning their view points and reactions, until he has a wide and deep knowledge of human nature. He learns the lessons that history teaches, he explores the world through books of travel, and through the study of science he sees the workings of the immutable law of cause and effect. He studies the various religoins that have been the pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night to the nations of the earth, and he knows something of their cumulative influence on the world today. He can trace the beginnings of art in its many forms, and its development through the ages.

A man may be a physical invalid in a wheel chair, and yet, through reading he can explore the Universe, going back in imagination to the Dawn of Creation, and bravely forward, up to the very door of the Millenium.

A man whose schooling has been cut short can continue his studies through reading and become a learned man. Books are the store house of the world's knowledge, and reading is the key. He who likes to read travels a delightful road to success.

No program of reading is complete that does not include several periodicals. No man or woman can keep abreast with current progress, local, national and international events who neglects the newspapers and magazines.

He who learns wisdom from his own experiences is an intelligent man but he who avails himself of the experience of others through reading, is on the high road to success. He has guide posts all along the way, and does not have to break out a laborious trail through unknown country. Constructive reading is the shortest road to success.

An interesting page in this paper endorsed by our community leaders outlines the value of reading and what our standard as a community should be.

To the reduced charge Jansing entered a plea of guilty, and turned over his driver's license to the judge.

State Banks May Seek To Widen Range

(Capitol News Bureau Service)

SACRAMENTO, October 2—Recommendation that California banks be permitted to engage in intrastate branch banking loomed today as a possible action of Governor C. C. Young's administration.

If Congress accepts recommendations of Comptroller of the Currency Pole, in charge of national banks, for the extension of branch bank factilities in the national system, State Superintendent of Banks Will C. Wood will give "serious consideration" to enlargement of the territory of California financial institutions to include all states within the same federal reserve district.

Report of the projected move, which would affect several of the larger California banking houses, was given today to Governor Young by Director of Investments E. Forrest Mitchell.

"It is understood that the comptroller contemplates legislation which would authorize national banks in one state to maintain branches in other states within the same federal reserve district," said a prepared statement by Wood, released by Mitchell. "If such legislation is enacted by Congress, state banks will undoubtedly seek the privilege of maintaining branches in other states

"This can be done through reciprocity between states in the same way that an insurance company having its head office in one state may operate in other states.

"In case Congress enacts into law the suggestion by the Comptroller of Currency, I shall give serious consideration to the preparation of a recommendation that California state banks be authorized to engage in intra-state branch banking. Under this plan, California state banks would be authorized to maintain branches in other states which enter into reciprocal relations with California."

COUNTY'S LEADING PRODUCE TOLD OF

Magazine Pictures Artichoke Crop On Coast

The current number of the California Journal, the official publication of the German societies of California, contains a lengthy article on one of San Mateo county's most important crops, the artichoke. The article is written by Roscoe Wyatt, secretary of the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce, and tells in detail the value of this crop to the county.

Originally a native of southern Europe and northern Africa, Wyatt states, the artichoke was cultivated as a food by the Greeks and Romans as long ago as 2000 years. This succulent vegetable may have emphasized the pleasure of eating to Epicurius and his philosophic followers. It may be safely said, that the Latin races who have made an art of eating, are the leading advocates in encouraging the use of artichokes. French and Italian chefs are past masters in preparing artichokes to tempt the palate and their use is no longer restricted to cities with large French and Italian colonies, as all classes and nationalities have learned to appreciate them when boiled and served simply with butter or salad dressing.

The first commercial planting of Globe or French artichokes in California was in 1900 and within six years the acreage had mounted to 1500 acres, all in Pedro Valley and the Halfmoon Bay districts in San Mateo county, though the only available market for the crop was among the Italian residents of the Bay Region cities. In 1904 one car lot was shipped to eastern markets but the results were not encouraging.

However, in 1915, the Commercial Agent of the Railway Express Company, as an experiment, arranged refrigerator express car service between San Francisco and the eastern markets. Fresh artichokes were soon being served in New York cafes and restaurants.

The coastside of San Mateo county is ideally suited to the growing of artichokes, and this section last year shipped almost 1500 carloads to the east in addition to the large demand for the vegetable locally.

Burlingame In Protest Over 'Phone Change

The telephone company announced yesterday that after a conference with the people of Burlingame that the innovation would be abandoned and that each city would be served from the exchange with numbers prefixed by the name of the town.

Burlingame is up in arms. The news that in the telephone directory now in course of preparation the prefix "Burlingame" would be omitted from Burlingame phones and the prefix "San Mateo" substituted. Burlingame and San Mateo are served by the same exchange, and the change was made by the telephone company in order to make all prefixes in the exchange uniform.

Burlingame residents object to the use of the name of San Mateo, and the phone company has been flooded with protests as a consequence. It is suggested in Burlingame that if the prefix must be uniform that a neutral name be selected. The use of the prefix "San Mateo" for Burlingame phones, Burlingame residents declare, will advertise San Mateo at the expense of her sister city to the north.

The method of reducing the whey to powder, without oxidation, which nullifies its use as a food stimulant, was discovered by David Peebles, a Petaluma chicken rancher, who developed the food for his chickens, obtaining extraordinary results. Peebles told Stanley about his discovery and the prison doctor took a sample of the food to try on the eighty patients in the San Quentin tuberculosis ward.

Maps of the twenty-one miles of beach at Pismo Beach and an area about Moro bay were being prepared for the State Park commission. Both may be included in the state park plan.

Postal receipts at San Leandro for the month of August show an increase of almost 50 per cent over a similar period for last year, it was announced by Richard Stromberg, postmaster. The total receipts for this year amounted to $4484 as against $2556 for August, 1928. The increased use of the air mail has caused the growth in business, the postmaster said.

Residents of Ross are preparing a vigorous protest to the State Railroad commission against the proposed abandonment of the passenger and freight agency at Ross by the Northwestern Pacific railroad.

FARM POULTRY

FEEDING PULLETS FOR WINTER EGGS

To Be Good Producers Fowls Should be Well Developed.

The profit or loss in winter egg production of pullets depends upon the care and feeding they receive. For pullets to be good producers during the winter months they should be uniformly developed, have good frames, and be in good flesh before they begin to lay. It is therefore necessary that they receive a good ration which will fill them out and also store up an abundance of fat, according to H. M. Wells of the Colorado Agricultural college.

Feed a good growing mash or a laying mash that is supplemented with a grain mixture of two parts by weight of corn and one part of wheat, advises Wells. A laying pullet during the winter months will draw upon her reserve supply of fat and the feed she eats will go toward the development of eggs; otherwise if she does not have this fat reserve she will utilize the feed she consumes to supply her body wants and keep her warm, and only the surplus will go toward the production of eggs.

It would be profitable, if one has the room, to grade the pullets according to size. Make two or three grades of pullets, namely, those that are coming into bloom (comb becoming red) and are laying well developed, would be put in the laying house and fed a laying mash with the grain ration recommended above. The next smaller grade of pullets should be given all the growing mash they will consume, and this should be supplemented with a moist mash at noon. This moist mash consists of the growing mash moistened with milk to a crumbly consistency. By following this method, the more backward pullets will be brought into production before extreme cold weather sets in.

To secure the maximum results in production from pullets, it is advisable to keep them housed separately from the hens.

Air Outlets Prevent Colds and Diseases

All poultry houses should have an air outlet from the highest point in the house, for without this air-vent moisture collects. The fresh air that enters the house becomes warm and rises, and as warm air holds more moisture than cold air can hold, it will cause dampness in the poultry house unless it has a chance to go out. Otherwise it condenses under the roof and drops to make the litter moist and to cause a damp hen-house, which leads to colds and other troubles for the birds and a gradual loss of vigor on their part and loss of money on the part of their owners.

These facts, and many others, on ways to house poultry at low cost are given in a Cornell bulletin, written by H. E. Botsford and sent free to poultrymen of New York. It tells how to remodel old buildings—even large disused barns—and how to construct new houses.

Plan Poultry Houses With Eye to Future

Save dissatisfaction, regrets, many useless miles of walking and finally the sale of an unhandy place, by planning over and over the proposed placing of the buildings.

Try to plan out the ranch as it will be at the end of five to ten years' development, and put the first building where it should be at the end of that time.

Every building that must be moved is a dead load of effort, time and temper.

Figure to save steps by having tasks that can be done going and coming, driveways that save using carts, wheelbarrows and man power—and locate feed room centrally.

If water must be carried, try to cut down the distance and plan on running water as a part of the progression of plant.

Use Lice Powder

Body lice on hens are best treated by some good louse powder such as sodium fluoride, Persian insect powder, and a dozen more or less, good commercial powders. The main point is to get the powder clear to the skin.

To do this, hold the hen in the left hand, head downward. Force a small handful of powder, about the equivalent of a level teaspoonful in measure, through the long, soft feathers that cover the abdomen and clear down to the skin.

Needed Minerals

The Ohio experiment station has been doing some work of late years with minerals for poultry, with a very simple mineral mixture composed of raw bone meal finely ground, 60 parts, ground limestone 20 parts containing 95 per cent calcium carbonate, sodium chloride or salt, 20 parts.

The above named experiment station concludes that these are the mineral elements that are most needed for the most profitable production of eggs and health of the hen.

Geese for Market

Three weeks before marketing place the geese in a small enclosure and give them all the corn and water they can eat. When dressing plunge the goose right in the boiler of hot water the same as you would a chicken, and it will be found very satisfactory and a labor saver. The water never reaches the flesh and the goose isn't any more than steamed and the feathers are nice and clean when thoroughly dry, thus saving the housewife a lot of extra work.

Army Football Squad Training

Wet, sultry weather prevailed as the Army football squad began its second week of practice. "Biff" Jones, head coach, used several ends in a down-field drill with several punters in action.

"Biff" Jones is seen here talking with Capt. Keener Cagle, who has been described as a "running-passing player with the manners of an eel and early training of a contortionist."

Baseball Talent Very Difficult to Determine

Judging baseball talent is difficult. No manager has ever shown perfect judgment. Managers are lucky if they are correct more than one-half the time they guess.

John Joseph McGraw, the manager with the best record ever made in the major leagues, has been wrong on numerous occasions. His mistakes have cost him a fortune for he frequently had to buy back, at a high figure, a player whom he had practically given away to a rival club.

Winter before last McGraw traded Rogers Hornsby to Boston and Burleigh Grimes to Pittsburgh. Hornsby, in the uniform of the Braves, led the National league in batting and Grimes, in the uniform of the Pirates, won 25 games last season.

Yanks Sign Leishman

Eddie Leishman, sensational young shortstop of the San Jose team in the California State league, who has agreed to sign immediately with the New York Yankees, to report next spring. The agreement was made with Bill Essick, Yankee scout, who watched Leishman in action. Leishman, an Oakland high school graduate, has also been sought by Pittsburgh Pirates, St. Louis Browns, and Oakland and Portland, in the Coast league.

Boxer Tangled Up in Ropes Is Counted Out

Boxers have been counted out while waiting for the count of nine, and they have been knocked out by accidentally hitting their heads against a corner post, but few have ever had the distinction of having been counted out by getting tangled in the ropes. It happened in a recent bout in Melbourne, Australia. Well ahead on points, Benny Moss went down in the first round of a ten-rounder. While falling he became entangled in the ropes and was unable to untangle himself before the referee had counted ten, and his opponent, Rex Johnson, was declared the winner.

Declares Weak Pitching Causes Liberal Scoring

President Thomas J. Hickey, of the American association, believes weak pitching is more responsible for high scoring in games than the "lively" ball, and produces figures in substantiation.

American association records for the season up to July 17 show that 33 shut-outs had occurred, 41 games in which one club scored but one run, 68 games in which one club scored but two runs, and only 54 games in which one club has scored ten or more times.

"I believe pitching has more to do with high scoring," Hickey said, "otherwise it would have been difficult for the league to have played 33 games in which only one team scored. I notice that whenever we get good pitching the lively ball does not seem to cut any figure."

Indians Give $20,000 and Grant for Pitcher

The Cleveland American league baseball club recently purchased Pitcher Milburn Shoffner from the Jersey City International league team for $20,000 in cash and Pitcher George Grant, who has been with the Indians for the last three years. Shoffner, a twenty-three-year-old southpaw, began his baseball career four years ago with Grand Rapids in the Central league, advancing from there to Rochester and Jersey City in the International.

FOOTBALL SEASON HAS OPENED AGAIN

Great American Intercollegiate Sport Is Here.

Football, that great intercollegiate sport, has come back this fall huskier than ever. Enthusiasm is not lacking in any section according to reports. Practice has started at all major universities, about the same time as in previous years.

When the Big Ten squads reported they were guided by eight men who coached last year. There have been only two radical changes in the coaching staffs. Harry Kipke, one of the greatest backs in Michigan's football history, will direct the Maize and Blue eleven. He succeeds Tad Welman, a former Michigan player who became head coach when Fielding H. Yost decided to devote his time to the athletic directorship.

Aside from the appointments of Kipke as head coach at Michigan and Willaman at Ohio State, the only other important change in coaching staffs of major institutions is at Nebraska. Dana Bible, who learned his football at Carson Newman university and who has coached for years in the South, will be in charge of football at the Cornhusker institution.

The season will be featured by attractive intersectional contests. Among these will be Army and Illinois at Champaign on November 9, Harvard at Michigan on the same date; Colgate at Wisconsin October 5; Carnegie Tech at Southern California December 14; Army at Stanford December 28; Notre Dame and Army at New York November 30, and Vanderbilt and Minnesota at Minneapolis October 12. Colgate will clash with Indiana at Bloomington October 19 and Mississippi will come up from the South to play Purdue at Lafayette November 9.

No Change in Rules.

Officials who will handle Western conference football games this fall held their annual meeting at Chicago to reach uniform interpretations of the playing rules.

Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the Western conference, presided. Several prominent officials talked on the various penalties and the reasons for them. In general, however, all concurred that this year's rules are specific and need little interpretation.

The forward pass was discussed, also the five and fifteen yard penalties. It was agreed that officials signal the score board keeper the reasons for various penalties. The code will be determined by Major Griffith and announced before the first games.

Dana X. Bible, new head football coach at the University of Nebraska and a member of the national football rules committee which last winter made the new regulations ruling a fumbled ball dead at the point of recovery, explained the rule and defended himself and the committee in a meeting at Kansas City.

For the seventh time William T. Tilden II, has won the national singles tennis championship, defeating Francis T. Hunter. The match was played at Forest Hills.

Comiskey to Rebuild.

Charles A. Comiskey, seventy-year-old owner of the White Sox, has informed his associates that he intends to rebuild his team himself. In other words, the veteran baseball magnate will return from his summer home in Eagle River, Wis., shortly and immediately plunge into the business of giving south side fans something to cheer about next season.

Two cueists who made their reputation in the last generation will endeavor to stage a comeback this winter and have announced their intention of entering the world's championship 18-2 balkline tournaments against the younger stars.

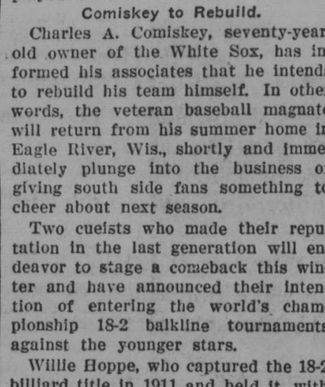
Willie Hoppe, who captured the 18-2 billiard title in 1911 and held it, with the single exception of the year 1921, until the 1924 tournament, will be seen in action again this season.

George Butler Sutton is the other old-timer who will meet the modern exponents of the game this winter.

"The Iron Man" is the most coveted trophy in the American battle fleet. The U. S. S. Tennessee now is in possession of the prize, which is a reward for prowess in all sports.

The New York Giants announced the purchase of the contract of Herman Pruett, left-handed pitcher, from Newark of the International league. Pruett formerly pitched for St. Louis in the American league and Philadelphia in the National. He became noted early in his career with the Browns as a nemesis of Babe Ruth.

Is Great Lineman



Captain Crane of the Illinois grid team is considered one of the best linemen in the Big Ten conference. He is training hard to get into condition.

Started on Beams

Rube Marquard, recently appointed manager of the Jacksonville ball team, has been pitching professional ball since he was fifteen years old. His father, a Cleveland (Ohio) contractor, objected to Rube's choice of the diamond profession, so Rube left home, with 90 cents and made the brake beams to Waterloo, Iowa, where he got his first job. John J. McGraw, of the Giants, paid $11,000 for the southpaw pitcher in 1908, and that was a record price then.

A Formula for Success . . .

OPPORTUNITY for success today is greater than ever before. The requirements to attain success, however, are more severe than they have been in the past. One of the fundamental requirements of success at the present time is knowledge—education.

There may, of course, be exceptions to the rule, but a careful analysis of the lives of hundreds of successful men and women show that during their life time over 95% have secured an education—have acquired superior knowledge. They may not have enjoyed the advantages of a college education, they may not even have enjoyed the privilege of attending school, but they have overcome these obstacles and acquired knowledge—they have educated themselves.

Most of our knowledge and education depends on reading. Whenever we leave our school or college, our education stops if we do not read. The educated person is the person who has simply kept up his reading.

People who feel they have no time to read are hampering their own opportunity to achieve a successful life. You can't afford not to read. A few minutes a day applied to good reading will enable any man or woman to acquire a very liberal education.

Among things to read, books come first. Nonfiction, biography and history especially, although good fiction has its place in a well ordered reading program. And the better the book, the better the reading.

Every home should have its books. The kind of books found in the home determine the cultural standard of the family, for as a man reads, so does he think. The books one reads become part of one's life. See that your children are provided with and read good books.

Magazines rank next to books for reading. They contain the best in contemporary literature, they are educational and inspirational. Become a magazine reader.

No program of reading could be complete that did not include the newspaper. No man or woman can keep abreast with current progress —local, national and international—who neglects the newspaper.

Supplementing the collection of books in the home should be always the public library. No community should be without some kind of a public library. Its cards should be in every home. There should be one book upon its shelves for each inhabitant, and two children's books for each child in grade school. In addition, it should house the leading reference works and supply its readers with the best in the magazine world; should be centrally located, and, if necessary, operate branch libraries to handle the total needs of the community. Remember, the circulation of public library books is one of the acid tests used to determine the community standard.

Make reading a part of your recreation. Reading means knowledge. Knowledge plus application means success. Let us make a "reading community" of

An Unjustice

By D. E. O'KEEFE

THE San Francisco Examiner in the last few days has gone out of its way to abuse and belittle Senator Samuel M. Shortridge for alleged short-comings and accusing him of political intrigue of which he is entirely innocent. The Examiner is sore clean through and must show its spleen. It must heap its tirade of abuse on some one. This anger revolves around the appointment of Alf Afthedal, as Internal Revenue Collector, the position now being held by John P. McLaughlin, who has filled it for the past eight years. The Examiner has espoused the cause of McLaughlin, bending every effort to hold him in the position. It accuses the senator of sponsoring the new appointee. Shortridge has done this, which was his right and privilege. If the senator in his wisdom saw fit to endorse another for the position held by McLaughlin, whose term of office was about to terminate, it was well within his right to do so. He should not be subjected to the censure of a newspaper that should be in better business than villifying a faithful public servant.

The senator is blamed for ousting several minor federal officials during the past year. The Examiner knows full well that he had nothing to do with their removal, their discharge having come from Washington. These accusations are simply made to discredit the great senator, to belittle his work at the capital and if possible to brow-beat him into withdrawing his support of Afthedal.

Senator Shortridge needs no defense. The people of the state of California, that have elected him twice as senator, have confidence in his integrity, honesty and ability and will not listen to, nor believe the false and bitter criticism of a disappointed metropolitan newspaper that has failed in its efforts to keep a favorite in office.

Senator Shortridge is now at Washington battling for the farmers of the state to secure a higher rate of duty on products of the farm so that they will not come in competition with the cheap commodities produced by poorly paid labor of other countries. He is making the effort of his career on the tariff in order to bring prosperity and happiness to the agricultural districts of the Golden State which he loves and reveres.

Newspaper criticism of the senator will not detract from the esteem in which he is held by his constituents in the state of California.

The Great Destroyer

TODAY, if this is an average 24 hours, several score people will be killed and thousands injured in automobile accidents. It happened yesterday, and it will happen again tomorrow.

Somebody turned without giving a signal; somebody was driving too fast; somebody didn't stop at a school district or a through boulevard; somebody insisted too much on right-of-way or what he conceived to be his privilege; somebody lost his head in a crisis. The result: Casualties and waste, in lives and property, that knowledge, caution and fairness toward others would have prevented.

It should be a reasonably simple thing to observe traffic laws, to keep a machine under control, to learn the written and unwritten rules of the road, and to keep one's eyes open for the mistakes of others as well as one's own. Yet millions of motorists fail to do so.

It should be rembered that every accident is caused because someone was reckness, incompetent, careless or ignorant. Unpreventable accidents are rare. And in this day of fast cars and congested traffic, the poor driver is a menace to the life and property of every citizen.

Co-operation

Society . . . . must be viewed as the means whereby man may, through co-operative endeavor, work out institutions and cultural traits designed to make his mundane existence ever more efficient, decent, happy, and beautiful.—Harry Elmer Barnes; Forum.

Who Pays and What For?

BUT a few years ago our national expenditure was well under $1,000,000,000 annually. Now billions are talked of and lightly voted by our representatives at Washington.

Are we getting our money's worth? If so, how? Moreover who foots the bill? In 1917 we took a very active and costly part in a "War to End War." Today President Hoover tells us we are speeding more warlike purposes than any European country. He adds that, unless disarmament parleys realize their mission, we shall in 1933 be saddled with an outlay of $803,000,000, as against $266,000,0000 before fighting that fight to "end war." Moreover, this, is in addition to some $800,000,000 in caring for war veterans, etc. Such facts become very interesting when we realize that the only source of government money is the citizen's pockets; there is no mysterious, inexhaustible supply elsewhere!

What does the man in the street get for his money? Simply an aggravation of life's two certainties, viz: speedier death and heavier taxes; also his customers killed off. He is told these forty-million-dollar battle ships are to "police the seas." Are there any villainous Algerian or Chinese pirates making the seas perilous for passengers? Or is it simply senseless Suspicion, engendering Fear and Hate among nations?

Moreover, cannot we realize the utter impotence of these ships confronted by airfleets dropping bombs, with 4000 pounds of high explosives, from 20,000 feet altitude? Why cannot world statesmen accept wisely General Grant's dictum, "There never was a time when, in my opinion, some way could not be found to prevent the drawing of the sword?"

So, Hurrah for Hoover and world disarmament!

The Billboard

THE fight which is being made to keep the Bayshore highway free from billboards is indicative of public sentiment, and is an omen which should be taken into consideration by the advertiser. When bill boards were few and far between they offered a method of advertising which attracted attention, yet was not objectionable to the public. But with the growth of the use of billboards to a point where many of our highways are literally lined with them, (we almost said litteringly lined with them) the public who pays for the building of roads and who intends to get the maximum enjoyment from them, objects.

California is noted for its scenic roads and beautiful vistas. It should be the pride of the people of this state to maintain these roads in a condition of beauty and to bar anything which will mar these vistas. The uncontrolled use of billboards along the highways does impair the beauty of the roads and in some cases injects an element of danger, either by reducing the motorist's view or by attracting his attention from the road.

The American Bull-fighter

FROM a paper called the Pathfinder we learn that an American bearing the name of Franklin has achieved great success in Spain as a bull-fighter. So enthusiastic over this Spanish pastime is this hero of the bull-ring that he is said to be contemplating returning to us to introduce it among us, believing that it will make the same sort of appeal to the average American that base-ball does. It gives such a thrill, he says, and that's what Americans like. No doubt they do. We can assure this tormentor and killer of bulls, however, that he'll have his hands full when he undertakes to repeat his Spanish achievements over here. Even bulls in America have friends, and no matter how many Americans might like to see them baited, bleeding and dying, to furnish amusement for them, some hundreds of humane societies would be ready at the entrance to the arena to read a very effective riot act. The latest news from Spain is that Franklin has been seriously gored by an infuriated bull.—Our Dumb Animals.

HEARING DATE SET FOR GREAT NORTHERN

WESTERN PACIFIC RENEWS PETITION

To Make Fight For Roadway On Peninsula To Join Main Line At Niles; Construction Work To Start At Once, If Permitted

November 13th has been set as the date for the first hearing of the application of the Great Northern and the Western Pacific railroads for a permit to construct a connecting line from Klamath Falls, Oregon, to join the Western Pacific's transcontinental line at Paxton in Plumas county. The meeting will be held in San Francisco before Charles D. Mahaffie, director of the bureau of finance for the Interstate Commerce Commission. The granting of this permit as well as the one recently asked by the Western Pacific for a line on the peninsula, will be opposed by the Southern Pacific.

The Western Pacific Railroad Company announced last week that final steps had been taken to obtain the authorization from the Interstate Commerce Commission necessary to enable the Western Pacific to carry out its plans to effect an all-rail entrance into San Francisco by the construction of a line of railroad by its subsidiary, the Western Pacific California Railroad Company, between San Francisco and Niles, via Redwood City. The proposed line will cross the southerly end of San Francisco Bay and connect with the main line of the Western Pacific.

The announcement stated that the Western Pacific California Railroad Company had forwarded an application to the Interstate Commerce Commission for an order reopening the proceeding in connection with the original application for a permit to construct the initial unit of the connecting railroad, namely, the section between San Francisco and Redwood City, in order that this application be amended to include the construction of the second and final unit between Redwood City and Niles, and that a hearing be held upon the project as an entirety.

The amended application, which has also been forwarded to the Interstate Commerce Commission, provides for the construction of 25 miles of railroad commencing at the Western Pacific terminals in San Francisco and extending in a southerly and southeasterly direction through the counties of San Francisco and San Mateo to Redwood City and thence to a point at or near the plant of the Pacific Portland Cement Company in San Mateo county; also for the construction of 14 miles of railroad commencing at a point on the San Francisco-Redwood City line at or near Redwood City and extending in a general easterly and northeasterly direction in San Mateo and Alameda counties to a connection with the main line of the Western Pacific at or near Niles.

The Western Pacific, which has determined that it is now practicable and desirable to construct both units of the connecting line, states that it will proceed to construct the new railroad upon authorization by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Reasons why the present and future public convenience and necessity require the construction of the proposed connecting railroad between San Francisco and Niles are stated by the Western Pacific California Railroad Company as follows:

1. It will immediately provide the Western Pacific with a through all-rail line into San Francisco via Niles and Redwood City, thereby being a great benefit to San Francisco and the other territory to be traversed and also to the Western Pacific by reason of the traffic and other advantages that will result therefrom. It will create a new and competitive all-rail route to and from San Francisco and the cities of the Peninsula. It will remove the handicap to the expansion of the transportation facilities of these cities and territory to be served, and consequently to their development, which has existed for many years due to the fact that access to San Francisco by land is monopolized by the Southern Pacific.

By comparison with other large cities of the West which have the complete service of two or more railroads, San Francisco is at a distinct advantage. Its rail facilities are by no means commensurate with its position as a great seaport and trade center of the West, and with the growing demands for the transportation of inbound and outbound traffic.

As long as all-rail entry to San Francisco is controlled by a single carrier, San Francisco may be said to be served by only one railroad in the full sense of the word. On account of the nearness of its main line to the San Francisco Peninsula, the Western Pacific affords the most feasible means by which this situation may be remedied and this will be accomplished if its proposed conecting line between San Francisco and Niles is permitted to be consturcted.

2. The plans of the Great Northern Railway for making a connection with the Western Pacific in Northern California, which are involved in the Great Northern-Western Pacific project now before the Interstate Commerce Commission, add very much to the necessity for the construction of the new line between San Francisco and Niles and will greatly enhance its value to the community to be served and to the Western Pacific.

3. The new line will serve a section of the City and County of San Francisco, an industrial district already well developed, and will include a connection with the South San Francisco Belt Railway which serves the Union Stock Yards and packing houses in that territory.

4. It will also connect the Western Pacific with South San Francisco and a section of San Mateo county, including the waterfront of the San Francisco Bay from Islais Creek to Redwood City. The section to be served has long been in need of direct railroad transportation service to afford opportunity for industrial development which is greatly needed and which will be of material advantage to the territory to be served.

5. The cities of San Mateo county, including South San Francisco, San Bruno, Burlingame, San Mateo, Belmont, San Carlos and Redwood City, will benefit not only from the industrial development of the Peninsula but will also gain by being served by a second and competing transcontinental railroad.

6. The proposed line will also afford rail service to a portion of Alameda county to be traversed thereby, much of which is an exceedingly valuable fruit and vegetable section.

7. The proposed line is a logical and necessary extension of the transportation facilities of the Western Pacific. The Western Pacific represents an investment of considerable magnitude. If this investment is to be conserved and if the Western Pacific is to function as an independent, self-sustaining and competing carrier, it must be given opportunity to round out its system so as to give maximum service to the territory which it

Frank McCann To Wear Medal

Detective Frank P. McCann will wear the medal for bravery to be presented this year by the 363rd Infantry Association.

He was selected by Chief of Police William J. Quinn as the member of the force who had performed the bravest deed of the year.

The medal will be awarded at a ceremony in the rotunda of the city hall on Saturday.

Young McCann's mother was formerly Miss Sarah Lenehan who was born and raised in Menlo Park. She is a sister of Mrs. John Doyle of this place.

Hopes For Bridge Wane

The hopes of the people of Menlo Park for a bridge over the San Francisquito creek through Stanford Park direct to the Stanford campus went a glimmering Monday night, when Mr. Roth, manager of the university, declared before a meeting of the Menlo Park Planning Commission that it could not be done. Mr. Roth said the university intended to devote all the land along the creek from the highway bridge to the foothills to botanical gardens and to erect a bridge across the creek would interfere with these plans, and besides the landscape would be marred. The botanical gardens are to be the largest and best in the world. He said the university would be glad to consent to a bridge across the creek south of the railroad span over which Alma street could be extended and across the Hopkins property and through an underpass the railroad tracks through the university property connecting with the state highway somewhere near Ahlert's plumbing shop. The construction of this road is now under consideration.

WOODSIDE

The wide rolling lawns of the Schilling place furnished a perfect seting for the garden fete sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. on Sunday last. Interest was divided between a tour of the extensive grounds and the program presented. Music was furnished by a string quartet and by a male chorus. Mrs. Kathleen Norris spoke and two playlets were presented by members of the organization. The latter of these was a Chinese pantomine offered by a group of young Chinese girls. The elaborate costumes had been loaned by the Chinese theater in San Francisco. The object of the fete was to acquaint friends of the organization with the pressing need of new housing facilities for the association in San Francisco.

The contract has just been let for the construction of the auditorium or private show house to be erected by George Whittell on his place here.

The Parent-Teacher Association held its monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon. A program was presented by the members of the 4th grade of the schools.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Short and family returned on Saturday from Carmel, where they had been for a month.

R. P. Hayes has returned from the hospital and is at his home in Woodside Glens.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wobbler are visiting in Quebec. They will return in about two weeks.

Barbara Neuman suffered a painful injury on Wednesday, being struck in the face with a flying baseball bat, at the playgrounds of the local school.

The hair has a surprisingly strong influence over the general aspect of charm. Our special sets in hair dressing and designing tell us that there are seldom two heads alike, but that women too often fail to realize that copying another women's coifure makes her too commonplace.

Well-Known Legal Firm Reorganized

Kirbride, Wilson & Brooks will be the name of the new law firm which will succeed to the business of Kirkbride & Gordon.

Col. Charles N. Kirkbride announced today the formation of the new law firm, and that Messrs. Ernest A. Wilson and Donald C. Brooks who have been with the old firm for a number of years past will be taken in as general partners.

Mrs. Wilma S. Gordon, the widow of the late Joseph B. Gordon, has consented to the new arrangement and approved the connection.

Colonel Kirkbride is a graduate of Northwestern University Law School of Chicago, having received his diploma at the hands of no less a person than the late Theodore Roosevelt, and has practiced his profession in San Mateo since the early days of the town. He has been admitted to practice in not only the local State and Federal Courts but also in the United States Supreme Court.

In 1906 Mr. Gordon became connected with his office and in 1912 the firm of Kirkbride & Gordon was formed which continued to function till the latter's recent death.

Mr. Wilson is a graduate or Stanford University of the class of 1922, and has been associated with Kirkbride & Gordon for the past six years.

Mr. Brooks is also a graduate of Stanford University, receiving his degree in 1925, and has been with the local firm ever since.

All three members of the new firm had experience in the World War and are staunch members of the San Mateo post of the American Legion.

Friendly Indians Elect New Officers

The Sioux Friendly Indian Tribe for boys 9 to 12 years of age in the Lincoln School district held their annual election of officers Tuesday. Twenty-five boys were present along with their big chief, Clif Woodhams and Roy Hohberger, the local Y. M. C. A. Secretary.

The following boys were elected to hold office: Chief, Charles Fuller; "Tom-Tom Beater, James Beckett; Wampum Bearer, Jimmie Argo; Medicine Man, Edward Hogan. The office of Indian Runner was decided, as is the custom, by all the boys who did not hold an office competing in a race the winner is the successful candidate. Richard Savage won this coveted office.

Plans were laid for a membership campaign to bring the tribe up to full strength. This tribe is now starting its fifth year of work. The first "Big Chief" of the trible was Paul Orr, who is now teaching in Russia. The tribe has won a number of trophies in inter-tribal competition and it is planned that these be set up in the club room in places of prominence.

An address on "Training Teachers in Service" was delivered on Tuesday by John Gill, city superintendent of schools of this city, before the meeting of school superintendents held in Pasadena.

New Unit of Skyline Opens Scenic Routes

With the opening to traffic, Sunday, September 29, of the newly completed section of the Skyline boulevard from the La Honda road to Saratoga Gap, motorists from San Francisco, the San Mateo peninsula section and the Santa Cruz and Monterey Bay sections have available a new through route to a vast secenic and recreational area of mountains and the sea. The new section of thirteen miles stretches from the dusky redwoods of La Honda Canyon to the tangled ridges of Saratoga Gap. It links the previously completed stretch of the Skyline boulevard south from San Francisco with the route into Big Basin and the San Lorenzo Creek road to Boulder Creek, the Big Trees, Santa Cruz and points on Monterey Bay, according to the touring bureau of the California State Automobile Association.

Along the new section of this road, there are scenes and vistas of supreme beauty. It lies west of the crest and provides glimpses of redwoods in the depths of Alpine Canyon and the steep slopes that stretch oak-clad down to the Pacific.

The new unit of the Skyline route joins existing roads at Saratoga Gap. The motorist bound for Santa Cruz follows the Big Basin road from this point to the oiled road that leads down San Lorenzo Creek to Boulder Creek whence pavement leads to the sea shore. The total distance by this route from Fleishhacker Pool, San Francisco, to Santa Cruz is 75.6 miles.

Or by following the Big Basin road from Saratoga Gap to the State Redwood Park, the motorist reaches the gigantic Sequoia semperverons by a drive of 62.6 miles; and the trip may be continued to Santa Cruz from Big Basin for a total distance from San Francisco's ocean beach of 85.7 miles.

Dorothy's Mother Proves Claim

Children don't ordinarily take to medicines but here's one that all of them love. Perhaps it shouldn't be called a medicine at all. It's more like a rich, concentrated food. It's pure, wholesome, sweet to the taste and sweet in your child's little stomach. It builds up and strengthens weak, puny, underweight children, makes them eat heartily, brings the roses back to their cheeks, makes them playful, energetic, full of life. And no bilious, headachy, constipated, feverish, fretful baby or child ever failed to respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup on their little bowels. It starts lazy bowels quick, cleans them out thoroughly, tones and strengthens them so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

Millions of mothers know about California Fig Syrup from experience. A Western mother, Mrs. J. G. Moore, 119 Cliff Ave., San Antonio, Texas, says: "California Fig Syrup is certainly all that's claimed for it. I have proved that with my little Dorothy. She was a bottle baby and very delicate. Her bowels were weak. I started her on Fig Syrup when she was a few months old and it regulated her, quick. I have used it with her ever since for colds and every little set-back and her wonderful condition tells better than words how it helps."

Don't be imposed on. See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name, "California" so you'll get the genuine, famous for 50 years.

Share Liberian Homes With Pets and Pests

The pleasures of living in Liberia are graphically described by a writer in the Churchman. "At first," she says, "my evenings were a long-drawn-out last-night-ever! Centipedes on the floor; lizards on the walls; flying cockroaches fully two inches long darting about, and I just sat with my eyes glued, first on one, then on the other pest, and waited to get hit. Now I can go on undressing at night and only look half a dozen times at the giant spider (4-inch span) which lives on my medicine shelf. But I sink under my mosquito net and put out my candle with a quick gasp of relief. I'm still whole! After a few moments of darkness papa and mamma rat start training the little rats around the walls, and then Charlie, our pet house snake, drives them off and quiet reigns."

Guam Folk Ask Citizenship

Manila, P. I.—On a little island in the middle of the Pacific ocean, 17,000 persons are asking to be admitted to citizenship in the United States. They are the Chamorros, natives of Guam.

Under United States sovereignty, but still not of it, this group of people is in an anomalous position.

Since their country was acquired by the United States following the Spanish-American war, the Chamorros have been under the rule of what is virtually a dictatorship exercised by governors who are presidential appointees. They have a congress elected by the people and subject to the approval of the governor, which makes no laws and comes to no decisions, the members of the assembly acting merely in the capacity of an advisory body.

The island of Guam is not bound by the laws of the United States. It recognizes a prohibition law, but it is a local one, not the Eighteenth amendment nor the Volstead act. The penal code enforced in Guam has been adopted from that of the Philippine islands.

The system of courts and law enforcement is directly under the supervision of the governor. He appoints the judges and there is no jury system.

According to Capt. L. S. Shapley, U. S. N., who recently completed a three years' term as governor of Guam, the natives of Guam need apologize to no nation in the world in the matter of law and order. Petty crime is rare, he says, and major crime almost unheard of.

Of the total population more than half live in the city of Agana, the only recognized municipality on the island. The others are scattered in the outlying districts. The island is divided into districts, each one under the supervision of a commissioner elected by the people. He serves also as congressman, mayor and police judge of his district. These supervisors are directly responsible to the governor.

Economically and commercially the people are not advanced. Educationally they are ambitious. Schooling, under the supervision of natives, is compulsory for all between the ages of seven and twelve and a high school has lately graduated its first class.

Despite the fact that the Chamorros are backward economically, they nevertheless are independent. It is estimated that about 95 per cent of the heads of families in Agana own their own homes in addition to other lands which they utilize for the growth of necessary food and their one export, copra.

China's Rain God Proves Power

Hankow, China.—Peasants in Wuhan and throughout Hupeh province were overjoyed recently at the end of a six-month drought which menaced their agricultural crops with complete destruction.

"Did we not tell you that nationalism must not interfere with the worship of gods and that if we want rain and a splendid harvest we must offer prayers to the god of rain and refrain from eating meat for seven days? Now China can plunge into any adventure, but to force the people to discontinue the practice of praying for rain would be a foolish policy and would result in a national calamity."

The drought in Hupeh affected many districts. In several large towns the rice crops were ruined by the lack of rain and famine set in.

It was when the drought began to take serious toll of the crops in and around Wuhan and a rice crisis threatened that the farmers, with the backing of the merchants, planned a monster meeting at which united prayer would be offered to the god of rain and god of harvest.

In the past such meetings were held whenever there was lack of rain, but under the Kuomintang rule, the authorities withheld permission, contending that it was purely a superstitious practice.

The controversy went on for over a month, but as the drought continued and the situation grew serious the local officials finally gave in and the united worship of the rain god was held.

Curiously enough, rain fell and the drought broke just a day after the mass meeting. The farmers and the promoters of the mass meeting were satisfied that the downpour was the direct result of their prayers.

HEADS CANAL SURVEY

Maj. Dan I. Sultan, of the office of the chief of engineers of the army, who has been placed in charge of the engineering battalion, numbering 400 officers and men, ordered to duty in Central American jungles to survey the route of the proposed $1,000,000,000 Nicaraguan canal.

Jamaica to Restore Palace

Kingston, Jamaica, W. I.—The King's House, historic structure of the West Indies, is to be rebuilt after centuries of neglect. Once the residence of noblemen and the rendezvous of the elite of Jamaica, the King's House stands in Spanishtown, a remnant of bygone glories.

The building was swept by fire in October, 1925. Little more than a shell now remains of the stately mansion, once regarded as "the noblest edifice of its kind in the Western hemisphere." The handsome facade, with its dignified columns of Portland stone and pavement of white marble, withstood the fire. The structure stands on a square the north side of which is graced by an open temple and colonnade inclosing the elder Bacon's statue of George Brydges Rodney, the "Savior of the West Indies."

The King's House was designed by Craskell, the engineer of the islands, during the administration of Gov. Sir Henry Moore, about 1754. It became the residence of many governors. Its cost was over $100,000. Not until 1870 did the glory of the King's House fade. During the administration of Gov. Sir John Peter Grant the seat of government was removed to Kingston.

In this house Jamaica gathered on his majesty's birthday for the king's ball, where such was the decorum that the Royal Gazette announced that "no gentleman can possibly be admitted in boots or otherwise improperly dressed."

On the portico the Lady Nugent, the delightful diarist, was received by Lord Balcarres, upon her arrival here in 1801. The big Hall of Audience is depicted by Wickstead in a famous painting. The salon was an apartment of noble proportions adorned with busts of poets and philosophers. On the walls were costly gilt girandoles to carry candles. At the north end was a minstrel's gallery where a band played on festive occasions.

"I wish Lord B. would wash his hands and use a nail brush, for the black edges of his finger nails made me positively ill. He has besides an extraordinary propensity to dip his fingers in every dish at table."

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Beetles.

The largest groups of insects in the universe is that of the beetle. There are some 150,000 different species, almost a tenth of that number in the United States. The word beetle means "biter," indicating the insects' ability of fighting and working with its mouth. Some beetles can scarcely be seen while others are about four inches in length.

Italian Invents New Hood for Sea Divers

Rome. — Endangered submarine crews will have one more chance of escaping a miserable end in case of accident since an Italian inventor, Commander Belloni, has devised a new subaqueous hood, recognized as cheaper and lighter than ordinary diving suits.

The diver's head is covered by the hood which is fastened to the armpits, and the rest of the body is unencumbered with a small tube of air under high pressure suspended from the diver's waist. The bottom of the hood is provided with a valve for the escape of vitiated air.

Commander Belloni himself has undergone an experience which has enabled him to remain under water for three minutes at a 330-foot depth. Two air tubes would double the time of resistance.

Cost of the apparatus will not surpass twenty dollars and it weighs only nine pounds, which is one-sixth of the German type of diving suit.

TURNING BACK

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Fayre in Maristan Chapman's "Happy Mountain" had lost his knife and he was sulking about it. If he hadn't gone so far with Mart he wouldn't have lost his knife, and he prized the knife very much, indeed.

"I was aimin' to turn back about here anyway," he explained, regretting, as many of us do, his foolish action. "Efn I'd known a step or two back all I know now, I'd a gone back afore."

How many of us would! But in life there is no retracing our steps. If we have wandered from the path, if we have made a foolish step, we must go on from where we are and pay the price of our error.

Barker has made a miserable failure of his first year in college. He has put off doing his tasks until the last minute; he has wasted his opportunities hoping before the end of the year to sprint up and finish the race with some sort of credit to himself. He has got into some habits which are not helpful through his inability to say no. Now he is in the same state of mind as Fayre was—if he had known a step or two back, all he knows now, he would have done very differently.

"Can't I forget what I've done, and start all over again as a freshman?" he asks me. "I know, if I started over again I could make good."

It is impossible both for Barker and for you and me. No one can get away from his past. Wherever he goes and whatever he does he must start from where he is now, handicapped by the mistakes he has made or pushed ahead by his successes.

McCord began drinking when he was a young fellow—moderately, of course, and with no intention of ever having the habit fasten itself upon him. He had never had too much before he was thirty, he would have said, though his statement would not have been wholly accurate, but it is true that he was seldom before that time seriously under the influence of liquor.

Now he is fifty or more and he is known about town as the village drunkard. He is talented, ambitious, he has more than the average amount of formal education, but he gets nowhere. People have no confidence in him; they shake their heads when any mention is made of him. He has lost the race.

"If I had known thirty years ago what I know now," he said to a friend not long [illegible] never have touched the stuff. And now it is impossible for me to turn back. I must go on in the path I have chosen, hoping only that the road ahead will be smoother, the hills less steep, the prospect more pleasing. If I had only known back there a step or two!"

There is no turning back.

Rat Strips Oatmeal Stucco From House

Hastings, Neb.—This is the story of a rat who ate the stucco from a house.

The house itself was rather unusual, both in its size—it was only eighteen inches high—and in its construction. It had been built by an Adams county child for exhibition at the fair as part of his health project for school work.

It was stuccoed with oatmeal, its windows were outlined with raisins, its front step was made of white beans, its chimney of red beans, and its roof of overlaid shingles made from apricots.

The idea was to show that if the house of health were built of such goods, it would be strong and sturdy. Whether the rat felt that its diet was lacking in health-giving foods or whether it was unusually hungry is a question, but today not a speck of the stucco remains and even some of the raisins show marks of the rodent's teeth.

The major was taken to a private house, where the spanking was administered with a broomstick before a crowd of civilians.

Horse Made Welcome

An unexpected overnight guest at Penacook (N. H.) tavern, caused the landlord to hustle to find accommodation. W. L. Batcheler, Worcester, and his horse arrived. The latter attracted by far the more attention. It was the first horse to be put up at the tavern during the regime of the present owner. He did not wish to turn away so distinguished a patron as Mr. Horse, so preparations were made for his comfort regardless of sacrifice. A car was backed into one of the stalls in the garage and the animal led in. Two boards were fastened up to which the horse's halter could be tied, and he was left in state.

Sirup From Watermelons

Watermelons instead of sugar cane may be the raw material used in a new Russian sirup factory recently established at Stalingrad, formerly Tsaritzin, on the Volga. The sirup is known as "nardek." It has been made by a crude hand process and so popular that beekeeping has practically disappeared from the region where it is used. The better grades of the sirup are used in the confectionery, and the poorer grades in the manufacture of alcohol.

Resignation and genius are the two wings on which we rise above the commonplace.

SUB ROSA By MIMI

Artistic Bobbing

THE barber shops were the first bobber shops. The girl's idea was to get a hair cut, to get rid of the old-style switch and be a flapper. With young girls, the act of cropping the mop of hair was not so bad, since a vivacious manner and a sweet face can get along without woman's crowning glory.

But when women as well as girls sought the shears and the hair began to fall in all directions, what was all right with golden locks was not so good with gray, and something had to be done. The bob must not take away from a woman's beauty, but must leave it as it was, or perhaps improve and enhance it. That has been the problem of the bob.

The proper caper for the hair cutter is to make the bob add to and not subtract from the beauty of the head. The head? Yes, for it was that important portion of feminine anatomy which was often lost to view with the old-style coiffure. People knew that a woman had something on the top of her neck and then there was the pretty face, but the sculptured head was not in it with the wig.

When a modern woman decides to let her hair go the way men did when they came out of the woods, she is only like an Oriental dame who slings her veil into the discard, if she really does that. Both women feel that they want to move about without any disguises and away go veil and switch, to say nothing of hatpins and hairpins. That's the woman who has sniffed the air of freedom.

A Greek goddess like Venus or Diana looked different from a French or English queen, if we may judge by their pictures, and it's the Grecian type that we are imitating today. This means that there must be form as well as face, the whole head and not merely eyes and lips.

A woman who is bobbed may look strange for a while, but she doesn't have that top-heavy appearance of the dame of olden days.

The bobbed head has the power to suggest that a woman intends to use her head and not merely wear it for adornment.

When a girl has trim locks under her closely fitting cap and isn't all decked out like an arbor of trailing arbutus, she's bound to give the impression that she has something under that hat, something more than hair.

Artistic bobbing will bring out the idea that a girl has something more on her mind than a switch and that she has as many ideas as her mother had puffs.

Decollete by Day

WHEN you see a girl with bare arms at 8 a. m., you think she's coming home from the ball, but as a matter of fact, she's just going to business. That's one of the signs of the times. It makes Father Time adjust his bi-focals. It's the Nouveau youth.

Now this decollete stuff is only democracy showing itself at elbows and knees. It means that the flapper is crashing the gate and breaking down the barriers between the lady and the shop girl.

Time was, you know, when it was only women of the Four Hundred who used the bathing suit costume, and then it was after dark. Time is when any girl can rig herself up in decollete and turn the office into a ballroom.

Women are naturally expressive. Let's put it that way. So a girl who may not be a cloak model or bathing beauty still wants a chance to reveal what beauty she has, along with the vaccination mark. A woman may conceal her mind, but she makes up for this by showing her neck.

I know that the professors who like to figure things out in dollars and cents tell us that lack of sleeves and trains mean that woman wants to economize in dress materials. It was the war, they say, that made 'em economical.

But economy was never a girl's maiden name. A girl may save a little on food, especially if she's getting fat hips, but she won't economize on dress. So it isn't economy in woman that makes her make a whole frock out of a scarf. It's the elemental within her.

Woman is primitive, that's all. This may sound like rough stuff, but it's what every woman knows. It's all right for men to be civilized, for they built all the cities, but woman doesn't care much about that sort of thing.

Look at a girl who throws off the coat of fur which once kept some wild beast warm. See the display of arms and shoulders. Now, isn't she a sweet ringer for some female ancestor who was togged out in the same way, minus the talcum powder?

The jazz costume of the day is a sign of the times. It shows that women have broken with the past and gone back to nature for a fresh start.

Unharnessed youth is the thing today. But this isn't only a lack of garters and corsets. It's freedom of mind as well as body.

It may have been the war, but I guess women were due for a change of some sort anyhow.

High School Notes

Each club in high school is represented on the Junior Red Cross council. The members of the council unanimously adopted a constitution at a noon meeting Friday. It will not be official, however, until approved by the commissioners. Under the new constitution the council will have two officers and a board of directors, so an election was held, and Rudolph Kalenborn was elected president and Chastina Hartsough, secretary.

The council will have charge of the social service of the school. This was formerly taken care of by the five girls' clubs and Iota Zeta, the boys' service organization.

Only one pay assembly each month this year and the prices for them have been lowered from ten to five cents. There will be no more rallies in the assembly.

So that citizens of the Sequoia high school district may officially inspect the new "million dollar Sequoia," a citizens' night will be held Friday. There was to be one last spring, but it was postponed because of the construction work being done on the school. A banquet will be given in the new cafeteria for the chamber of commerce in the high school district to start the entertainment, and following this a faculty committee will take care of the rest of the program.

Strong organized rooting at football and basketball games is made certain by the plan sponsored by Iota Zeta, according to Jack Morgan, commissioner of welfare. Seventy boys were chosen who could probably attend all of the games, and they will have a special section reserved for them so there will be more volume than if they were spread out.

Evelyn Wild and Louis Nelson have the leads in the junior play, "White Collars." The cast is rehearsing several times each week, under the direction of Mrs. Bess Belcomb. November 11 is the date set for the production, which is a three-act comedy.

"Inter-class handball will start next week," stated Frank Griffin, athletic director. By a process of elimination there will be a champion for each class. The four class winners will then play it off to determine the school champion.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wagner returned this week from a motor trip into British Columbia.

Mrs. L. B. Winniger was hostess to the Methodist Ladies Aid Society at her home on Washington street Wednesday afternoon.

The Alexcina Sewing Club met Tuesday at the Odd Fellows hall for a card party. Mrs. Gilbert Farrell was chairman of the committee in charge of the occasion.

VITAPHONE REVEALS COLLEEN MOORE AS CHARMING SOPRANO

Few people were aware that Colleen Moore possessed a pleasing soprano voice until she revealed her talent as a vocalist in "Smiling Irish Eyes," her first talking picture, a First National-Vitaphone production which comes to the Sequoia Theatre next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Colleen sings several melodies during the unfolding of this Irish romance, among them, "Smiling Irish Eyes," a love-ballad from which the production takes its name. Miss Moore has always been musically inclined having studied both piano and voice during her school days with the intention of going on the concert stage.

When Producer John McCormick selected "Smiling Irish Eyes" as her first talking picture, Colleen began her voice exercises once more, and by the time production commenced on the First National Vitaphone special she was in good voice.
